Hi Heather,

Hope all is well,

Thank you for coming back to me, In answer to your question in regards to the AE, the pictures below are taken from said unit, splitting of supporting timbers and internal rot. Rot is not always visible from the outside of the structure, we use methods of sound and gauging equipment from our experience one timber component fails the rest are near to fail or follow very shortly afterwards.

Our RAG rating (Red, Amber, Green) below indicates priorities we work on, I hope this info helps. - We will wait and see the ROSPA findings

Hi again Heather,

Thanks for being patient, I wanted to talk to a few members of our Team to ensure I give you the correct information.

With regards to the cable, it will most probably just need re-tensioning which you can either carry out yourselves as part of your regular maintenance or we can quote to come and re-tension it for you. I've attached the original installation and inspection information as it is probably something that you can do yourselves but if not, just let us know.

The Engineer who visited your site back in February remembers your site well and said that some of the uprights have moved overtime. This can sometimes happen when ground shrinkage or movement occurs. Because of this, the roller and tensioning mechanism is not in the correct position and this could also be affecting the cable. To rectify this issue we would need to replace 4 of the upright poles and would recommend this is done as soon as possible. If you go down this route, the cable would get re-tensioned anyway.

I'll arranged for a quotation put together for this work for you so that you have the costs to enable you to make a decision.

Kind regards,
